

Q:- Explain the term 'F. H. 5'

ANS:- F. H. 5 refers to the Five Hours of History. It is a term used in the Indian history curriculum for the 5th semester of the Bachelor of Arts (BA) program. It covers the period from the end of the British rule in India to the beginning of the Indian independence movement. The five hours are allocated to the study of the following events: 1. The end of British rule in India (1947), 2. The formation of India and Pakistan, 3. The Indian independence movement (1942-47), 4. The role of the Indian National Congress, and 5. The role of the Indian National Army (INA).

Clyde G. Beryl - "The latter was one of a series of local and largely bloodless rebellions, seemingly uncoordinated and without unified leadership, of a predetermined national plan."

Clyde G. Beryl - The latter was one of a series of local and largely bloodless rebellions, seemingly uncoordinated and without unified leadership, of a predetermined national plan. This text is a quote from the book 'The Indian National Movement' by Clyde G. Beryl. It describes the nature of the Indian independence movement as a series of local, uncoordinated rebellions rather than a unified national struggle.

Attam Chakraborty
Faculty member,
Dept. of history,
Narasajoke Raj college.